Bio what?

What do you know about biofuels? What would biofuels mean for your flying experience? And why should you know about biofuels? Answering all these questions will greatly help inform the development of a brand new project which seeks to catalyse a new fuel source for the aviation industry.

The project is run by a consortium made up of enterprise development specialist Fetola, global conservation organisation WWF, and SkyNRG - the global market leader in sustainable aviation fuel supply and development. As a regular flyer, your opinion and knowledge is really important to this pioneering project.

Your participation in this survey will be greatly appreciated!
